Broward College was ranked among the top 10 community colleges in the nation by the Washington D.C.-based Aspen Institute.

Broward College ranks fifth by Community College Week among four-year institutions in awarding associate degrees, moving up from sixth place last year. According to CCW, Broward College is ranked third in the U.S. in awarding associate degrees to minority students. Broward College is fourth in graduating African American students, and sixth in producing Hispanic degree-holders.

Broward College offers the most affordable higher education cost in South Florida.

Thirty-seven percent of Broward College’s student body was born outside of the United States. As of 2012, Broward College boasts a student body representing more than 175 countries.
• Broward College offers a wide variety of programs and at different levels of attainment. In fall 2012, the college offered 158 programs of study. Sixteen of those programs are offered as online programs, with more than 200 courses offered online.

• Broward College has had 10 recipients of the prestigious Jack Kent Cooke Undergraduate Transfer Scholarship since the scholarship was first awarded in 2004. Students from Broward College and Miami Dade College lead all colleges in the state and all community colleges in the nation with the number of community colleges awarded JKC Undergraduate Transfer Scholarships.

• Broward College’s Seahawks women’s tennis team qualified for the National Junior College Athletic Association Division I National Championships, where they finished fifth.

• Of the 23 Florida community colleges in the National Junior College Athletic Association’s Region 8, Broward College offers the largest program, offering competition in eight sports.